CURRENCIES USD/CAD

Weaker economic data from Canada, a Fed that is determined to continue tightening into a global recession, and a BoC that is starting to back off will continue to weigh on CAD in the short-medium term, so we revise our 0-3m USD/CAD forecast to 1.40, but leave the 6-12m forecast unchanged at 1.31."

AUD/USD

The Australian dollar failed to capitalise on a sustained USD downturn Monday as Chinese growth concerns and a correction in CNY values countered gains won on the heels of an improvement in risk sentiment.

USD/CHF

The USD/CHF pair is attempting to build a base of around 0.9640 in the early Asian session. Earlier, the asset witnessed a steep fall after failing to strike the round-level resistance of 0.9700.

CURRENCIES

USD/JPY

USD/JPY holds onto the day-start inaction around 149.00 as European traders brace for Tuesday's work. In doing so, the yen pair remains inside a 40-pip trading area established after a rollercoaster start to the week.

EUR/USD

The EUR/USD pair trades at around 0.9880 heading into Tuesday, pretty much unchanged from its weekly opening. The USD eased at the beginning of the day, pushing EUR/USD to an intraday high of 0.9899.

GBP/USD

The GBP/USD is hovering around 1.1300 since the beginning of the American session, unable to benefit from a modestly weaker US dollar. Economic data from the US came in below expectations while Sunak was confirmed as the next UK PM.

CURRENCIES

EUR/GBP

EUR/GBP licks its wounds as markets await the Fed's verdict during early Wednesday in Europe. In doing so, the cross-currency pair snaps a threeday downtrend around 0.8420, bouncing off a fortnight low after posting the biggest daily loss since July 07.

EUR/JPY

The EUR/JPY is rising for the fourth consecutive day on Thursday and is testing the 129.50 area. Technical indicators still point to the upside, favoring more gains ahead. Still, the euro needs to break and hold above 129.50 in order to open the doors to more gains.

GBP/JPY

GBP/JPY takes offers to renew intraday low around 166.60, reversing the week-start run-up, as it drops towards one-month-old support during Monday's Asian session. In doing so, the yen cross again reverses from the six-month-old upward-sloping resistance line.

TECHNICAL

By doing so, the market then turned around to show signs of life and it looks as if we are going to continue to see a lot of noisy behavior. At this point, the market is likely to look at the 50-Day EMA as a potential barrier, so if we were to break above there, then it's likely that we could see the 200-Day EMA tested. On the other hand, if we were to turn out a breakdown below the lows of last couple of days, then we would more likely than not test the $80 level.

GOLD

Gold markets initially tried to rally rather significantly during the trading session on Monday, but then gave back quite a bit of negativity, and therefore it's likely that we continue to see a lot of "sell the rallies" type of trading.

TECHNICAL

The 50-Day EMA is sitting right around the $1700 level and is dropping significantly. If we were to break down below the bottom of the candlestick for the Monday session, then it's likely that we will try to fall significantly and test the "double bottom" that I have marked on the chart right now. If we break down below those, then it's likely the gold will go looking to the $1600 level, maybe even the $1500 level.

TECHNICAL

If we were to break down below the bottom of the candlestick for the Monday session, then I think we've got a shot at a lower move. Ultimately, the $20 level above should continue to be a massive barrier to get over, so I think at this point in time it's more likely than not going to be a "fade the rally" type of situation.

TECHNICAL

Ultimately, this is a market that I think will continue to be soft at the very least. Rallies at this point in time will continue to be sold into as traders are starting to worry about whether or not there is going to be enough demand. This is a vicious candlestick, and big candlesticks like this almost never happen in a vacuum.

TECHNICAL

The most-active cotton futures contract ended Thursday at over 78 cents a pound, up 55% since prices bottomed on April 1 during the early days of U.S. coronavirus lockdown orders. A lack of rainfall in key growing regions has reduced expectations for the current crop. The International Cotton Advisory Committee last month trimmed its estimates for the global harvest by about 1%. The U.S. Department of Agriculture expects the smallest domestic crop in five years.

TECHNICAL

At this point, the market is more likely than not going to continue to see a lot of volatility, and with a 50-Day EMA coming into the picture, it suggests there could be sellers sometime soon. Keep in mind that 3800 level just above has been a bit difficult to get beyond, so therefore I think we are setting out for some type of pullback.

US Equity NASDAQ 100 Index

The NASDAQ 100 initially pulled back on Monday, but then turned around to find buyers yet again.

TECHNICAL

It looks as if the NASDAQ 100 is going to threaten the 11,500 level, but at this point it's worth noting that the market is running on hope more than anything else. The market is likely to continue to see a lot of volatility, but at this point it's worth noting that the 50-Day EMA is sitting just above and should offer a significant amount of resistance. Ultimately, this is a market that I think as soon as you see exhaustion, there will probably be sellers willing to jump back into the market.
